Fix in the right the Printing Press should be, The tyrant's foe, the champion of the free; Faithful and constant to its sacred trust— Calm in its utterance, in its judgments just; Wise in its teaching; incorrupt and strong To speed the right and to denounce the wrong.

PULASKI, TENN.

FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 22, 1886.

Brevities and News Items.

The man who could not stand it any longer, has taken a seat, and feels better.

Some author tells us that much is said about the tongue. True, the thing is in everybody's mouth.

The inventor of the popular street toy, known as the "return ball," has realized $10,000 from sales during the past year.

Neither false curls, false teeth, false eyes, even false calves, are as bad as false figures.

A wag wrote on the back of our fat reporter: "Widened at the expense of the corporation."

Keep your dog away from me! said a dandy to a butcher-boy. Durn the dog, he's always after puppies.

A cow died in Maine and a piece of hoop skirt was found in her throat. It is supposed she swallowed the milkmaid.

The man who don't take a newspaper refused to take a one dollar bill the other day because it might be altered from a ten.

The man who can't take the paper, prefers stage traveling to railroads. The former, he says, rides him eight hours for a dollar, while the latter only rides him one.

A Substitute for butter.—Get the girl you love best to prepare and partake of your breakfast, and then if you are a reasonable man you will not want any but her.

If our town constable, in approaching his end, waxes cold, and gives up his awl, what will become of his sole, if he cannot breathe his last?

An editor congratulated himself that his head was safe from a donkey's heels. His opponent gave as a reason, that he was never able to make both ends meet.

A young man advertised for a wife through a newspaper, and received eighteen hundred dollars from husbands, saying that he would have theirs.

A man who refuses to take a newspaper, and drinks whisky at a quarter, is able to die at any moment. Better take a drink from a friend.

"Where now," said a little girl, while running a drawer in the family bureau, "there now, grandpa has gone to heaven without his spectacles."

A script being told that it was sweet in his country, tried to excuse him on the ground that he never did like things.

The easiest way to get a living says a gambler, is to sit on a gate and wait for good luck. In case good luck don't come along, you are no worse off than you were before.

If an earthquake were to engulf England to-morrow, said Douglas Jerrold, the English would manage to meet and dine somewhere among the rubbish, just to celebrate the event.

Where do you hail from? asked a Yankee traveler.

Where do you rain from? was the reply. Don't rain at all.

Neither do I hail, mind your own business.

The available coal supply of England, Gladstone estimates, will last only 104 years. That may alarm some people; but there is no reason to be scared. Water will be used for fuel before that time, and men will wonder how people got along in the nineteenth century with such costly, unhandy and dirty material as coal.

PHILANTHROPY.—Gen. B. Butler took from Gen. Dick Taylor's plantation two hundred and seventeen negroes while he was in command in New Orleans, and there are now but ninety-three of these negroes living. Of the negroes who were living in 1860, but one-half are now alive. This is an established fact—a record.—Washington Union.

Who Wants Him?

A practical printer, who is competent to take charge of any department in a printing publishing house. Would accept a patronage in any of the academies. Has no objection to teach ornamental painting and penmanship, geometry, trigonometry, and many other sciences. Is particularly suited to act as pastor to a small evangelical church, or as a local preacher. He would have no objection to form a small but select of interesting young ladies, to instruct in the highest branches. To a dentist or a podiatrist he would be invaluable, as he can do almost anything. Would board with a family if decidedly pious. Say, does anybody want him?—Norfolk Day Book.

A man in Detroit advertises for a partner in the nursery business. A new way, perhaps, of advertising for a wife.

RATES OF POSTAGE.

In consequence of the general ignorance in the South of the rules of postage established by law, many letters of importance are daily lost to those interested by being improperly or insufficiently stamped. The regulations require that all such letters dropped into post offices shall be immediately forwarded to the Dead Letter office, where they are never heard from unless they contain money, or other enclosures of value. We give below some information which may prevent vexation to correspondents:

The rate of postage on letters within the United States is 3 cents for every letter or sealed package weighing one-half ounce or under. Those over one-half ounce, 6 cents and 3 cents for every additional half ounce. Prepayment with stamps in all cases is required. All letters without the necessary postage stamps, or which are stamped with revenue stamps, will be forwarded to the Dead Letter office immediately after being dropped into any post office.

Postage stamps issued prior to 1880 are worthless, and will not answer for present purposes.

Opinions of Distinguished Business Men.

"Advertise your business. Do not hide your light under a bushel. Whatever your calling or occupation may be, if it needs support from the public, advertise it thoroughly and efficiently in some shape or other, that will arrest public attention. I freely confess that what success I have had in life may fairly be attributed more to the public press than to nearly all the other causes combined. There may possibly be occupations that do not require advertising, but I cannot well conceive what they are."—P. T. BARNUM.

"I have always considered advertising—liberally and long—to be the great medium of success in business, and the prelude to wealth. And I have always made it an invariable rule, too, to advertise in the fullest times, a long experience having taught me that money thus spent is well laid out; as by keeping my business continually before the public, I have secured many sales that I otherwise would have lost."—STEPHEN GIRARD.

"Whatever success I may have had in business I owe mainly to continuous advertising, and I deem it good policy to advertise long in the same papers. From a close observation I am fully convinced that it is impossible to make much headway in any kind of business, without the facilities which the press alone can give."—JACOB RIDGEWAY.

"My motto through life has been, work and advertise. In business, advertising is the true philosopher's stone, that turns whatever it touches to gold. I have advertised much, both in the weekly as well as the daily papers; nor have I found that those of the largest circulation, of either class, benefited me the most."—JOHN JACOB ASTOR.

"Advertise! advertise! advertise! This is the life of trade; and standing advertisements, you will find, will prove the most remunerative, at least I have found it so during my business career thus far; for should you withdraw but a single week from the paper in which you are accustomed to advertise, ten to one that it would be the time when some would be new customers will look into the paper for your business address, and not finding it, you will lose several profitable sales."—WILLIAM GRAY.
